

From: Christopher Hughes
Sent: Thursday, November 13, 2014
To: Director - GASB
Subject: Proposal of Corporate Tax Transparency

Hello and Good Day,

I am writing as a student of political science, a part time line cook, an activist and a concerned citizen with a future ahead of me. I have lived in Boston my entire life. Your proposed rule and law to make available on public record corporate tax sheets and expenditures is absolutely crucial to the well being of democracy and what it means to be American, it means that the poor still can fight and win over the rich.

What this law entails is curbing corporate corruption, which is essential to humanities well-being in times where circumstances are becoming worse and not better.

This is most likely the first time in your life that the above statement is true. It is an empirically tested fact.

I am twenty years old with a healthy body and an even healthier mind. That is why I became interested in politics and activism, I am smart and I want change for the better to reduce suffering. Yet I am kept awake at night by the horrible fears of what my choice of study entails. It means that I have to wage a war against savage mercenaries paid by corporations to degrade stability into places of war and suffering because you and I need coffee so we can walk by the heroin addict on the corner.

i am writing to you as a grateful citizen, and I am able to have my opportunity in large part not because of the benefits corporations give to us, but because of the hero's and super humans that have fought successfully against them. And I am asking you to do the same as have millions of others.

Thank you for your time,

Christopher Hughes